

Affirmation Wall of Obedience

As I look at our family's affirmations wall of emotional support and encouragement, I can hear a still voice in the back of my mind whispering scriptures of love and obedience, exhorting me, and reminding me how important it is to stand strong in the Lord and to always stay in the spirit. I grew up without a father in the home, often thinking it was not possible to have a leader that would love and care about me. Now that I am a wife to a righteous man of GOD, it is such an honor to be obedient to my lord (husband). Submitting myself under the authority of a prophet of the Most High God reveals my womanly superpower of righteousness.

As I write this affirmation about true obedience and love, I feel a sense of stability, peace of mind, security, and protection under the rule of my lord's house. In times of trouble, I am aware that I must trust and lean on the scriptures, as this is what I know my lord would do. We are one in CHRIST and my lord is preparing my mind and spirit to handle any storm that may arise. Following my lord's directions has allowed me to now have peace of mind when it comes to the affairs of his home. Following my lord's leadership keeps me stable and nourishes me mentally, physically, and spiritually.

This walk as a wife and helpmate is the most challenging thing I have ever experienced, and often times it is still hard for me to believe that he chose me to be with him. Being one with my lord makes it possible for me to accomplish anything and everything life throws our way. A purpose has been given to my life, in good times and tough times, obeying his instructions will lift me up and guide me towards the right path.

I am now ready to rest, confident that I have completed everything required of me today. It is a privilege to serve a man of God.
